What problem or need does your community impact plan seek to address? Please include any relevant data.

The Sample Dispensary/Greater Hudson Promise Neighborhood (GHPN) partnership addresses the deep and persistent economic disparities facing children and families in the City of Hudson and Columbia County, disparities rooted in decades of state and federal policy, including urban renewal and the enforcement of cannabis prohibition, that fell hardest on Black and Latino residents.

Hudson's poverty rate is 28.2 percent, more than double Columbia County's 12.1 percent, and its median household income of $54,139 trails both the county ($81,528) and New York State ($85,974) (U.S. Census Bureau, American Community Survey 2020–2024). These disparities have deep roots. In the late 1960s and early 1970s, urban renewal cleared more than 50 acres near Hudson's waterfront and displaced more than 200 families, nearly one in ten residents. Decades of cannabis prohibition compounded that harm: statewide, more than 80 percent of people arrested for marijuana possession were Black or Latino.

Greater Hudson Promise Neighborhood (GHPN) has served Hudson since 2011, when it was selected as one of fifteen communities nationwide for a U.S. Department of Education Promise Neighborhood planning grant. Modeled on the Harlem Children's Zone, GHPN is a place-based, cradle-to-career organization headquartered at 364 Warren Street in Hudson, serving children and families from birth through adulthood. Its programs include free early learning for children ages 0–5, a countywide early literacy network, free after-school enrichment and transportation, the Beyond GED program (tutoring, job placement, and driver's licenses) for Opportunity Youth ages 16–24, rent assistance and direct cash transfers for families, enhanced visiting for children of incarcerated parents at the Columbia County Jail, and court and systems advocacy for justice-impacted residents. GHPN also convenes more than 40 partner organizations monthly to support children, individuals, and families across Hudson and Columbia County.

General operating support allows GHPN to direct resources where community need is greatest and to sustain the staff, space, and programs that families rely on at every stage of life. By investing in the full continuum rather than a single program, the Sample Dispensary–GHPN partnership helps break cycles of poverty and justice involvement that span generations.

Who are the communities and individuals disproportionately impacted you intend to target?

The targeted population is children, youth, and families in the City of Hudson and Columbia County who have been disproportionately impacted by poverty, systemic oppression, and the enforcement of cannabis prohibition, including justice-impacted individuals and their families. GHPN's mission is to build an equitable community by providing opportunities and support to individuals and families affected by systemic oppression and failures. Across all GHPN programs, 79 percent of participants are BIPOC.

Goals

1) Strengthen Early Learning and School Success. Provide free, play-based early learning for children ages 0–5 and free after-school programming with homework help, daily reading, hot meals, and transportation, so children enter and stay in school ready to learn. Measured by the number of children served in early learning and after-school programs (2025: 31 children enrolled in Promise Early Learning, serving 30 families; 2022: 30+ students enrolled in after-school and 143+ children reached through the Traveling Early Learning Program).
2) Expand Pathways to Education and Employment. Through Beyond GED, help Opportunity Youth ages 16–24 earn a high school equivalency credential and move into employment, training, or college, with tutoring, stipends, job placement, driver's license support, and individualized support. Measured by GED credentials earned and participants gaining employment (2025: 6 GEDs earned and 16 participants employed; 12 GEDs earned since program inception).
3) Increase Family Stability and Reduce Justice-System Harm. Provide emergency assistance to families in crisis and keep children connected to incarcerated parents through enhanced, child-friendly jail visits. Measured by individuals receiving emergency support, evictions diverted, and dollars distributed (2025: $350,170 in emergency assistance; rent assistance reaching 482 individuals, including 220 children, and diverting 90 evictions; grocery relief for 760+ residents during the SNAP lapse), and by families and visits served through enhanced visiting (90+ families and 750+ visits, August 2016–August 2025).

Partnership Commitment

Sample Dispensary commits $5,000 per year to Greater Hudson Promise Neighborhood to provide general operating support for GHPN's cradle-to-career programs in Hudson and Columbia County, for a term of 2 years, beginning November 1, 2026. Total commitment over the term: $10,000.

The Year 1 contribution is made upon signing this pledge; the Year 2 contribution is due on the one-year anniversary.

Funds sustain the staff, space, and programs GHPN families rely on, from early learning and after-school to Beyond GED, emergency assistance, and support for families affected by incarceration, directed where community need is greatest.

How will you measure your program's success? Please describe both the qualitative and quantitative metrics you plan to use and how you'll gather this information.

Qualitative

Qualitative success will be measured through participant and family feedback, interviews, and stories that show growth in stability, confidence, and connection. GHPN staff build trusted, individualized relationships with participants across programs, and its court advocacy team includes staff with lived experience of the justice system.

Participants describe the difference this makes. A Beyond GED student called the program “one of the best decisions I’ve made for my future,” and a parent said, “It’s been heaven sent for my child, and without this program I am not sure where my son would be.” In surveys from GHPN’s enhanced jail visiting program, incarcerated parents reported improved behavior and fewer disciplinary issues, and children reported reduced anxiety about their parent’s well-being.

A parent of a Promise Early Learner wrote in 2025: “It’s been wonderful to see how much confidence and independence he has gained… I’ve especially noticed growth in his social skills and willingness to try new things.”

These qualitative measures, gathered through surveys, interviews, and ongoing staff contact, show not only whether programs are reaching families, but whether families feel more stable, supported, and hopeful about their future.

Quantitative

Success will be measured through clear, quantitative outcomes across GHPN’s cradle-to-career continuum, tracked by program staff and reported in GHPN’s annual impact summary.

Early Childhood and Youth

- 31 children enrolled in free Promise Early Learning, serving 30 families, in the program’s fourth year (2025)
- 143+ children were reached through the Traveling Early Learning Program (2022)
- 30+ students enrolled in free after-school programming (2022)

GHPN also convenes CO-HOST, a network of 24 youth-serving partner organizations that met monthly in 2025; its 2025 retreat provided free professional development to 36 people from youth-serving organizations. Tracking includes enrollment, daily attendance, and reading time, as every after-school scholar reads a minimum of twenty minutes per day.

Young Adults (Beyond GED)

In 2025:

- 20 Opportunity Youth enrolled
- 34 GED tests were taken
- 6 participants earned their GED (12 since program inception)
- 16 participants gained employment
- 20 participants received DMV identification cards
- 4 participants opened bank accounts

Family Stability

- $350,170 in total emergency assistance provided directly to Columbia County residents in 2025
- Rent assistance reaching 482 individuals (262 adults and 220 children), diverting 90 evictions (2025)
- $28,600 in discretionary emergency support (utilities, car repairs, groceries) for 166 additional individuals (2025)
- Grocery relief for 760+ residents during the November 2025 SNAP lapse, delivered in under ten days, with all eligible requests fulfilled
- 189 air conditioners delivered to residents of the Hudson City School District, summers 2021–2024

GHPN also runs HudsonUP, a guaranteed income pilot providing direct cash transfers to 128 Hudson residents. In independent research by the Jain Family Institute, employment among the pilot's first cohort rose from 33 percent at enrollment to as high as 85.7 percent, and stood at 66.7 percent in the most recent survey reported.

Families Impacted by Incarceration

August 2016–August 2025:

- 90+ families served through enhanced visiting at the Columbia County Jail
- 750+ enhanced visits, 87 percent in person

Overall Performance Indicators

Program success will continue to be measured through:

- Children and youth served and attendance rates
- GED completion and employment placement rates
- Households receiving emergency assistance and dollars distributed
- Families and visits served through enhanced visiting
- Participant and family satisfaction

Reporting and Accountability

GHPN will provide Sample Dispensary with an annual impact summary covering the metrics above, along with acknowledgment of contributions received. Sample Dispensary will retain these records, together with proof of each contribution, to document plan implementation at license renewal.
